

Ragazze Quartet & Arturo den Hartog present:

Are You Worried About the Rising Cost of Funerals?

This concert programme focuses on the music of Caribbean composers. Each of them has reflected on the same fundamental questions in their own way. What happens after this life? What does it look like? Is there peace there? And why does that peace so often seem unattainable here?

In Erollynn Wallen's cycle 'Are you also worried about the rising costs of funerals', these questions are explored explicitly in her own unique way. In Jessie Montgomery's music, we may find answers through the spiritual path, in which hope, comfort and the longing for a better place are central. Eleanor Alberga's work, The Glimpse, also fits seamlessly into this quest.

The Caribbean perspective forms the heart of the programme, but the theme is universal. The music speaks of loss, hope and the human need for peace.

Biographies composers

Jessie Montgomery is a Grammy Award winning American composer, violinist and teacher. Her music mixes classical tradition with vernacular music, improvisation, poetry and social themes. Her works are performed by major orchestras and ensembles worldwide. She served as Mead Composer-in-Residence with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, was named Classical Woman of the Year for 2025.

Erollynn Wallen is a British composer and performer born in Belize. She writes music across genres and for stage, film and concert performance. Wallen's career includes award winning compositions, was the first black woman to write a piece for the BBC Proms and she has been described as a leading voice in contemporary British music. Her works engage a wide range of musical styles and ideas. Wallen received an MBE in 2007 and a CBE in 2020 for services to music and was appointed Master of the King's Music in 2024.

Eleanor Alberga is a Jamaican born British composer with commissions from the BBC Proms and The Royal Opera, Covent Garden. With a substantial output ranging from solo instrumental works to full-scale symphonic works and opera, her music is performed all over the world.

Roberto Sierra is a Puerto Rican composer known for contemporary classical music that blends rhythmic energy with lyrical invention. Born in Vega Baja, he studied in Puerto Rico and Europe where one of his teachers was György Ligeti at the Hochschule für Musik in Hamburg, Germany. Sierras works have been performed internationally. Sierra has won awards including a Latin Grammy for Best Contemporary Classical Composition and his works have been part of the repertoire of many of the leading orchestras, ensembles, and festivals in the USA and Europe.

Don Shirley was an American pianist and composer whose career spanned jazz and classical styles. Born in Pensacola, Florida, he performed widely and recorded extensively during the 1950s and 1960s. Shirley wrote classical works including concertos and chamber music while also performing and recording jazz influenced pieces. His life story was also made into a film, Green Book, in 2018.

Performers

Arturo den Hartog is a Surinamese-Dutch countertenor and winner of both the jury and audience prizes at the 2021 Princess Christina Competition. He began his musical journey as a solo singer in the church in Suriname and was among the first students of the Cathedral Choir School in Paramaribo. After moving to the Netherlands, he studied at the Royal Conservatoire in The Hague with, among others, Rita Dams, Robin Blaze, Pascal Bertin and Peter Kooij. Arturo is a versatile performer with a strong affinity for opera, art song, Baroque and contemporary music.

He recently made his solo recital debut in the Small Hall of the Concertgebouw in Amsterdam with pianist Daan Boertien and his operatic debut with Dutch National Opera and LOD Muziektheater Gent in The Girl, the Hunter and the Wolf by Vasco Mendonça. He has collaborated with ensembles such as Camerata RCO, Holland Baroque and La Sfera Armoniosa, and appeared at festivals including O. Festival and the Opera Forward Festival. Deeply committed to performing music by Black composers and composers from Suriname, Arturo has appeared at Dutch National Opera, on Podium Witteman and at Muziekgebouw aan 't IJ, where he is currently artist-in-residence. Upcoming projects include new contemporary works, a solo concert with Ensemble Klang and his debut with the baroque orchestra Il Gardellino alongside Dame Sarah Connolly in the Concertgebouw.

The Ragazze Quartet is passionately committed to renewing and expanding the string quartet repertoire. Whether performing well-known classics, rediscovering unjustly forgotten composers or presenting new works, the quartet continually seeks new perspectives and sounds. Through adventurous productions, they address socially relevant themes such as climate change, the history of slavery, mourning and feminism, collaborating with artists and partners including Abel Selaocoe, Conny Janssen Danst, Via Berlin, Thomas Beijer, Nynke Laverman and the Kronos Quartet. They also play an active role in developing the repertoire through commissions and arrangements, with new works by composers such as Caroline Shaw, Calliope Tsoupaki, Annelies Van Parys and Seung-Won Oh.

As one of the leading Dutch string quartets and a Channel Classics artist, the Ragazze Quartet has released ten critically acclaimed albums, including But Not My Soul, which presents a rediscovery of America from a more feminine perspective. The quartet performs regularly in major and smaller venues and festivals in the Netherlands and abroad, with tours throughout Europe, Asia and the United States, and frequent appearances on radio and television. Founded in 2001, the ensemble consists of Rosa Arnold and Jeanita Vriens (violins), Annemijn Bergkotte (viola) and Nathalie Flintrop (cello), and they also curate the annual festival September Me. The Ragazze Quartet receives multi-year support from the Performing Arts Fund NL and the Amsterdam Fund for the Arts.
